Foreword

The front door opened, then silently closed, for the fiftieth time. Inside stepped a youth full of anticipation and eager to begin his first year in this Christian school. The halls were no longer silent, after the long summer lull, for the sound of laughter and greetings wafted out toward the youth at the door.

With a look that portrayed both uncertainty and expectancy, the youth noticed the doors that seemed to beckon the students inside. Would the knowledge to be gained beyond those doors ever really become a personal, integral part of his daily life? Other doors, unseen but felt, were also beckoning to adventures in social development and leadership abilities.

The laughing, chattering group, which represented the students returning to familiar and well-loved hallways and dormitories, soon engulfed this youth of which we speak and hurried him along until he, too, felt a part of this eager, bustling, and friendly school.

Again our youth stands at the threshold and looks anxiously out into the dim and uncertain future. Soon the door of another school year will close forever upon the activities, dreams and accomplishments of this memorable year of his life. Yet, indelibly recorded on pages of memory are those special events and unforgettable friends which have made this school year of 1961-62 so very important to him. God alone knows the future before him; still, he fears not to face the morrow, for just a few more swings of the pendulum of time remain 'ere the door of eternity shall open wide to usher in the "kingdom which hath no end."

Within the pages of this book we have tried to capture and retain for you those unforgettable parties, picnics, and events which added zest and variety to the daily routine of classroom activity. Also, we trust you will find renewed inspiration and satisfaction as you relive the events of this school year through the pages of the 1962 MAPLE LOG.

Top Stories

Hardly had the school year begun when the attention of our school family was called to the devastation wrought by Hurricane Carla. One of our teachers, Mr. Curry, and one of our senior boys, Terry Flyger, were asked to deliver a truckload of clothing and other useful items to disaster-ridden areas in Texas. Many stories could be related of sights and smells encountered while on this humanitarian mission.

The Berlin Crisis and other world trouble spots have made it necessary to call many men back into the armed forces. In trying to prepare our boys to be ready when duty calls, the Medical Cadet Corps has been diligently training them in military drill, discipline, and courtesy, as well as teaching them to care for the wounded at home or on the battlefield.

British centurion tanks and armoured cars rumbled along a street in West Berlin during an unheralded alert exercise.

Scholastic Requirements

Ursula Polensky and Dick Lauer working on an experiment in Chemistry.

The headlines of world news may scream for attention—and they are important to us as students. The extracurricular activities of the school may absorb much time and energy—for they, too, are important parts of our total personality development. Yet, foremost, and never to be minimized, is the basic curriculum around which every school must center its program of education.

The modern age of technology has made it imperative that the science and mathematics departments be strengthened in order to keep up with rapid scientific developments. Basic to progress in other fields is good communications, written or spoken, which must be based on correct usage of the English language. These are only two of the subject fields which comprise our curriculum of study.

Religious Privileges

No educational program can be complete without a proper emphasis on, and training in, spiritual development. It is only as a student receives training in social, mental, physical, and spiritual areas that he can be said to receive a complete, or well-rounded, education. This is one of the foundation principles upon which our school was founded and is its only valid reason for being in existence.

It is no wonder, therefore, that religious activities form a basic part of our school program. Each fall the students dedicate one day of service to soliciting funds for welfare projects, in both local and foreign areas.

A special feature was added this year when Evangelist Robert M. Whitsett conducted his "Truth for Today Crusade" in our lovely new church. Meetings were held twice weekly through the fall months.

Linda Farbo and Emily Hagen soliciting on Ingathering Field Day.

Social Relaxation

Dwight Englerup, Joan Meadows, Darlene Hammerback and Newton Zanes prepare to take advantage of a special escorting privilege.

Students enjoy an evening of skating.

Courtesy Royalty—Queen—Aldine Eisenman, King—Tom Murphy, crowned at the end of September.

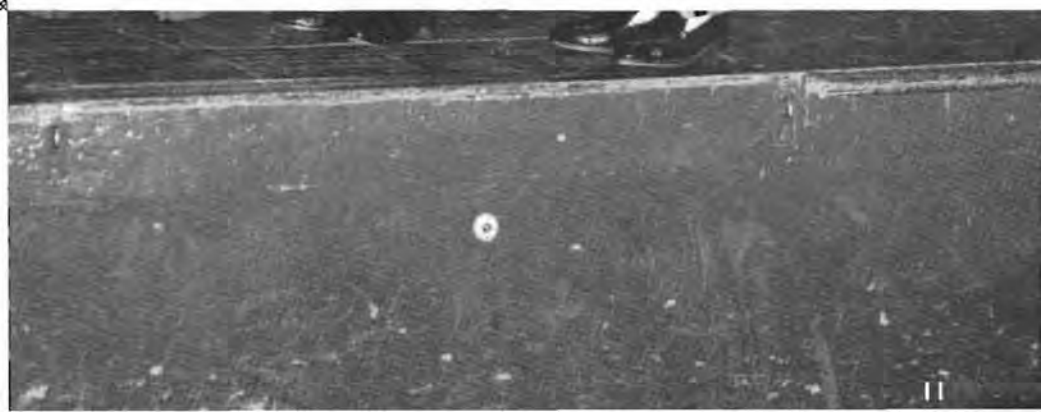

Many activities are planned for the social side of our school life. The students eagerly anticipate those special evenings when they all dress in formals or suits for a banquet or other special entertainment for the evening.

Opening doors for the girls is one aspect of courtesy looked for in students when being considered to hold the title of "Courtesy King or Queen" for the month.

Most students take advantage of the opportunities provided for recreational activities in the gym almost every evening before worship and evening study periods. It may be skating, basketball, volleyball, or an impromptu hike, but participation in any one of these activities gives needed diversion and relaxation after a day of study and work.

WE SALUTE

Pastor C. E. Felton

To one who has understood, assisted and encouraged us; to one who has diligently helped us prepare ourselves for future life—to you, Elder Felton, as head of the Bible department and pastor of our church, we, the staff and students, dedicate to you this 1962 MAPLE LOG. We hope this yearbook will recall to you cherished memories of this school year.

In Dedication We Salute You

The family behind the man.

Elder Felton invites Linda Larson in for a friendly chat.

Principal's Message

Our world today is a changing world. The man or woman of today finds circumstances vastly different from the ones preceding our time. This changing era presents unprecedented problems and perplexities, but not without unlimited opportunities. Happy is the young man or woman who looks into the future with undaunted courage; who steps into the future with a preparation sufficient to meet its perplexities; and who lives in the future to bless humanity.

God is calling for your services today. Let us improve our God-given talents to do our bit of service in this world of ours.

" 'Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom.' 'The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright.' True education imparts this wisdom. It teaches the best use not only of one but of all our powers and acquirements. Thus it covers the whole circle of obligation,—to ourselves, to the world, and to God."

DEPARTMENTS

Academy Administration

Mrs. Anderson concentrates on the voice in the transcriber as she types another letter for the principal.

The construction of a new dormitory takes a lot of planning and study. Here Mr. Anderson goes over the blueprints to make sure everything is just the way it should be.

Mr. Anderson, principal of our school this year, is a very busy man. Besides the duties of principal, he is the director of the Choraliers, a small vocal group. Ever since he assumed the responsibilities of the principalship, he has been seeking to improve our school. His most noticeable accomplishment this year is much in evidence as the new girls' dormitory progresses toward completion.

Mrs. Anderson employs her secretarial skills a part of each day as she helps out in the school administration office. Her merry laugh and office efficiency add much to the office atmosphere.

Next to Mr. Anderson's office is that of the Assistant Principal and Registrar, Mr. McMillen. Though new to this position, he is not new to the students and staff for he has served as our science teacher the past two years. He still teaches several classes in that department in addition to his new responsibilities.

Making the school accounts balance is a major part of Elder Noble's job.

Office

Business office duties of sorting mail and adding up columns fill the day for Brenda Christensen and Pat Horst.

Our new accountant, Miss Julius, looks up information kept in the new school safe.

This school year a new position was created in our business office and Miss Sandra Julius was called to serve as accountant. With her help, she relieves some of the pressure that was previously felt on the assistant business manager. The business office has made improvements with a new safe, a new mimeograph machine, and a private office for Elder Noble. These greatly aid in making their work more efficient. Keeping the accounts straight and in balance is no easy task, for it requires the time of not only Elder Noble and Miss Julius, but also three student assistants. The students learn to work with figures, accounts and the procedures of an office which helps to prepare them for the future.

MR. LANE SCHMIDT
Assistant Dean of Boys

East Hall

The Knights of East Hall hail from many places. The general in charge is Mr. Tom Hinde and his assistant is Mr. Lane Schmidt. Many activities, pranks and fun take place within these walls. The boys have worked hard to paint and fix up the new worship room they acquired during the past summer. In the dormitory, the boys learn to live with each other and work together. This is part of the education at the academy.

Gerry Kennedy, a monitor in the dormitory, is checking his record with Mr. Hinde.

Must be some noise!? Monitors, Terry Flyger, Hubert Hubin, and Dave Lighthall, are checking in on the situation.

West Hall

Mrs. Reid, the first semester school nurse and girls' dean, checks over the reported sick list for the day with Lynn Misenko, office assistant.

Among the newcomers to West Hall this year are the deans and the assistant dean. Miss Julius arrived first and served as the dean during the summer months. Mrs. Reid arrived just as the school year began to assume her new responsibilities as girls' dean, as well as school nurse. At the second semester break, Mrs. Garner came to be our dormitory mother and has ably filled this position. Along with this change, Mrs. McMillen joined our staff as school nurse and we greatly appreciated her help.

All the girls have been watching with interest the progress on the new dormitory—some with regret that it wasn't built sooner and some with anticipation toward making it their school home next year.

After lights are out for the night, second floor monitor, JoAnn Kupcho, hands over her reports to Jan Stewart as she begins her night-watch duty.

ELDER C. E. FELTON
Head of Bible Department
Church Pastor

ELDER J. N. NOBLE

An important part of the program in any Christian school is the religious instruction incorporated into the regular academic curriculum. Four teachers have shared in conducting the spiritual guidance and teaching in this department this year. Each in his own way has tried to help the students realize the importance of a Christ-centered life and the help to be found in Bible study. Many different methods are employed to encourage the student to want to understand and apply this information to his individual life.

MR. ERIS KIER

MR. DEAN HOLMES.

Elder Felton leaves instructions with Becky about the work that needs to be done for the day.

Mr. Holmes points out to three of his Old Testament History students a place of interest in the land of Palestine.

Two of the student readers in the Bible Department are Henry Zollbrecht and Beth Christensen.

Beverly Fisher makes use of the library facilities as she does some research for a special project in the Youth Guidance class.

The students in English IV studying the newspaper to learn what features must be included in an article to make it a good news story.

English classes are designed to teach the students more than just the parts of speech and how to use them correctly. The world of literature must be introduced to the students in such a way that they will be led to find enjoyment in a reading of it. Journalism, spelling, and public speaking all must be included in the teaching of English in order to give the student the well-rounded education that he must have to fit him for life in the world around him.

Mr. Holmes uses the record player to help the English III class find enjoyment and beauty of expression in some of America's folk songs.

MR. CECIL CONQUEST

Modern Language Department

Students who elect to study a foreign language open up a whole new world of culture and understanding for themselves. Though it may not be the easiest subject, its rewards are satisfying and lasting. Mr. Conquest has spent many years as a classroom teacher; and, though he has not been active in this field for several years, he was willing to again take up the work of a teacher by conducting the Spanish I and II classes for our students this year.

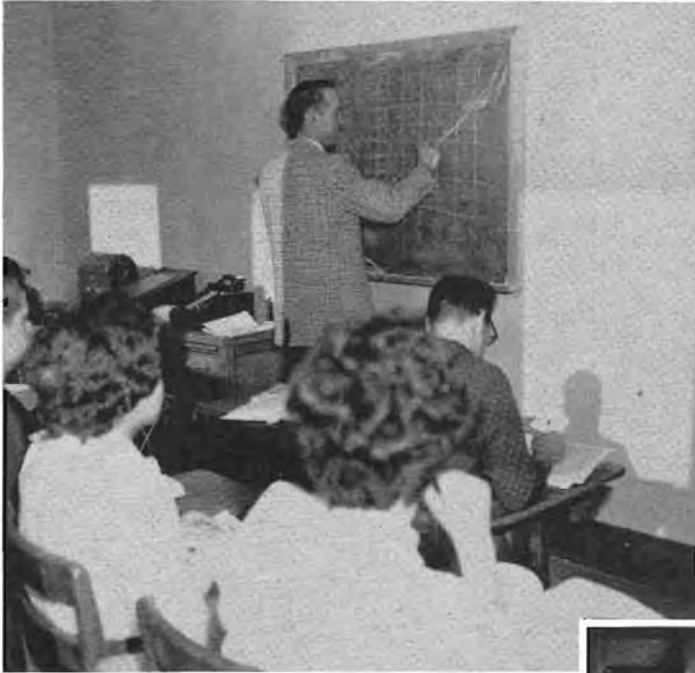

Mr. Conquest goes over a vocabulary drill with the Spanish I class.

Dick Hebbel and Barbara Roderick practice their Spanish grammar by writing sentences on the blackboard as Mr. Conquest watches.

Elaine Spangler, Judy Kabrick, Jim Wasemiller, and Merrill Barnhart all find plenty to do as they correct the papers for the Science and Math Department.

Mr. Blue works out a graph on the board for the Advanced Algebra class.

Mr. McMillen watches as some of the General Science students feed the laboratory pets.

General Science

The world in which we live today has made it more than ever necessary that every student have at least a working knowledge of the basic fundamentals of science and mathematics. Those who wish to take advantage of the many opportunities in the ever-expanding field of science must start early and go beyond the mere basic courses offered.

The need for increased instruction in these fields led the administration to add another teacher in this department. Mr. Blue has capably joined forces with Mr. McMillen in giving this very interesting and helpful instruction.

The Physics class works out an experiment as Mr. Blue supervises.

History Department

The past lives again in the pages of the history books and it takes on individual meaning for the students through the instruction given in the history classes. Mr. Hinde, who is a real history enthusiast, brings this same enthusiastic approach into the classroom. Not only do the students study the history of the past, but they learn to read, listen, and analyze history in the making by the introduction of current events as part of the class activities.

MR. THOMAS HINDE
American History
World History

Events of World War I take on added meaning as places of importance are pointed out on the map. Alvin Hansen is showing the class an important location.

JoAnne Kupcho smiles as Mr. Hinde points to an interesting feature of her history book. JoAnne is the reader for the History Department.

Library

The school library, which also serves as a study hall, serves an important function in the lives of almost every student. Here is where they can find the answers to many of the questions that arise through class discussions, individual reading, or just friendly chatting. The library is truly a storehouse of knowledge patiently waiting to be put to use by the students.

Mrs. Pierson was asked to fill in as Acting Librarian in addition to her other duties for this school year. Though she has not had as much time to spend in the library as she would have liked, other teachers have taken their share of responsibility for supervising study halls and the library has continued to serve as an important part of the educational program.

MRS. ALICE PIERSON
Librarian

Sue fixes an attractive bulletin board display as part of her student librarian duties.

Jeanette catalogs and marks some new books for the library.

MR. ERIS KIER
Bookkeeping

Business Department

Emily Hagen listens carefully as Mr. Kier explains how he wants the day's bookkeeping grades to be entered.

It seems that Dick Farbo has run across a hard bookkeeping problem, but Mr. Kier is there to lend a helpful suggestion for solving it.

The Business Department offers Shorthand, Typing I, Office Practice and Bookkeeping. Mrs. Pierson and Mr. Kier are the teachers in this department. In Bookkeeping class the students learn how to keep financial records straight and in order. Typing is very important in the business world, and the students get much drill and practice in typing every kind of business form. Much hard study and practice are put into the Shorthand class to constantly raise the student's speed. This class is very important to those planning to enter secretarial work. The skills, attitudes, and training given in the Office Practice class are designed to prepare the students for beginning office jobs.

MRS. ALICE PIERSON

Office Practice

Bernadine Johnson and Yvette Petersen keep challenging goal devices up for the typing students to help them reach faster speeds.

Part of the laboratory training in the Office Practice Class is learning to run the full-key adding machine and the ditto machine. Here Pat Horst and Henry Zollbrecht try out these mechanisms.

MISS SANDRA JULIUS
Home Economics I and II

At the head of our Home Economics department this year is Miss Julius, who joined our staff for the first time. During the first semester, sewing was emphasized in the Home Economics I and II classes. These classes were very enjoyable in the lovely Home Economics room. Second semester the Home Economics classes will learn how to make healthful and nutritious meals and at the same time, make the meals attractive and tasty.

Cheryl Chaffee and Sharon Dockham find that cooking is part of becoming better homemakers of tomorrow.

Vocational

Judy Burgeson is surprised to find that Miss Julius doesn't think she's pinning up Sue Prosser's skirt the correct way.

Department

MR. ERIS KIER
Shop

Mr. Kier, who lists among his other abilities a real skill as an electrician, teaches the freshman shop class. This year he has taught many useful things to the boys for use in later years. They have studied electric wiring, and were able to see a new house being wired. The boys also did some wiring themselves. In this way, they learned by actual experience as well as in the class room. It also made the classes much more realistic. They have learned about auto mechanics, and how to make minor adjustments on vehicles. Along with this, Mr. Kier has incorporated into class some drivers training which is a real asset to those who will soon be counted among the nation's drivers.

Mr. Kier, a licensed electrician, watches while Chuck Nash, Merle Peterson, Dave Johnson, Dick Reiner, and Keith Hagen, members of his class, fix some faulty wiring on the school dairy building.

Dave Bowers, Cliff Peterson, Merle Peterson and Jim Olson, shop class members, learn auto mechanics while they work on the school truck under the supervision of Mr. Kier.

Music Department

MR. LANE SCHMIDT
Asst. Dir. of Music Department
Band and Choir
Voice and Instruments

MRS. DOROTHY GALBRAITH
Piano

MRS. DOROTHY HOLMES
Piano and Organ

Music is an important part of our life at Maplewood. Through the different musical organizations the students learn to appreciate the better music prepared for band and choir. The band, under the direction of Mr. Schmidt, has 43 members. Throughout the school year the band presents several concerts consisting of snappy marches, overtures, tone-poems, and novelty numbers.

Mr. Schmidt also directs our 60-voice choir. The students learn to blend their voices harmoniously in anthems of praise, patriotic melodies, and well-known songs of many types.

The Choraliers is a select singing group of 19 voices that goes on tour throughout the state giving programs in various churches. This group is under the direction of Mr. Anderson, who is also the head of the music department. The students enjoy traveling and meeting new people as they give their programs. This year the Choralier girls made blue wool dresses alike, making the group look more uniform.

The basis for all music is learning the notes of the scale. Many students learn the scale on the piano from Mrs. Galbraith. This year, Mrs. Holmes joined our staff, teaching piano and also organ. With much patience and after long hours of practice the students are soon able to play for meetings and many other functions.

It is very important that Deanna Beltz and Linda Larson keep the music in order for Mr. Schmidt.

Mr. Schmidt shows Skip Kier where he should play it again and try to do it a little better.

Mrs. Galbraith and Charleen are amused over the mistake she made.

Sandy Rasmussen listens intently as Mrs. Holmes tells her which foot she should use.

LT. THOMAS HINDE
Unit Commander

Medical Cadet Corps

The Medical Cadet Corps is designed to train young men for service in the medical units of the Armed Forces during the term of their military service. Under the able direction of Lt. Hinde, the cadets learn to march and follow military commands, apply the principles of First Aid, understand the organization of the military services, and practice military courtesy. To help the trainees apply this new knowledge under realistic conditions, they were taken to North Star Camp near Brainerd for a week-end bivouac from October 19 to 22. There they pitched their tents, hiked, stood guard, took their turn at K. P. duty, and participated in other army-type activities. Military service is not an unexpected or unwelcome tour of duty to the young man who has been thus trained in a Medical Cadet Corps unit.

The Medical Cadet Corps stands at attention while Lt. Hinde and 1st Sgt. Engelrup conduct inspection.

"Hut-2-3-4," calls Lt. Hinde during military drill.

Physical Education

The physical education class is one that has a lot of exercise and activity. In this class the students do calisthenics, play volley ball, and learn tumbling techniques. When weather permits the physical education classes meet outside where they participate in softball, football, and other outdoor sports. Fresh air and exercise are great aids in building strong bodies.

Joanne Kier jumps on the new trampoline that was purchased with proceeds from the A.S.B. candy campaign.

Others in the physical education class watch Dan Miller as he gracefully leaps over Newton Zanes, John Spangler and Verle Chaney.

MRS. GLADYS LARSON
Director of Foods

A favorite place of most of the students three times a day is the dining room. Here the aroma of freshly baked bread and rolls can be smelled. Our efficient food director, Mrs. Larson, fixes tasty and nutritious meals for the students to enjoy. This year the kitchen and dining room have been painted and a new deck made. This makes it possible for two lines to be served simultaneously which is an important consideration when 160 young people with appetites whetted are anxious to satisfy their hunger.

Cafeteria

Brenda Christensen leaves the deck to go to a table as the line continues.

Mrs. Larson brings a pitcher of cream out of the walk-in for baking.

Bonnie Berthelson pours a little milk into the potatoes that are being mashed.

Maintenance Department

Mr. Schwab shows Alan Woods and Glenn Sackett how to fix the leaky connection on a Craftshop radiator.

MR. PHILIP SCHWAB
Maintenance Director

Mr. Schwab, "Mr. Fix-it," keeps the buildings repaired and our rooms warm. The maintenance crew, under his faithful supervision, fixes leaky radiators, installs new machinery and keeps the school looking neat and clean with fresh paint in halls and rooms. During the night and early in the morning the firemen spend many hours shoveling in the coal that keeps the steam up and our buildings heated.

Keith Hagen pours coal into the stoker as Kenny Pierson shovels it into the furnace to keep our buildings warm.

Gerry Hanson and Mrs. Schwab finish installing the new washing machine in the laundry.

MR. IVAN GROULIK

Vocational Bookbindery

Maplewood offers many opportunities for students to work part of their way through school. The Bookbindery is an industry that employs many students throughout the year. Old books with covers worn or missing are brought into the bindery by the field salesmen, to be rebound. Under the careful supervision of Mr. Groulik and Mrs. Nott, the books go through the necessary processes and are ready to be sent back in 28 days. Many operations are necessary to change a worn book into one as good as new and the new electric trimmer has speeded up the process and helped improve the efficiency of that department. A complete job of redecorating: painting, cleaning, and fixing the rooms was done this year. Through the efforts of many the Bindery is nicer looking and is a much more pleasant and cheerful place to work.

Mrs. Nott, an assistant to Mr. Groulik, is getting the back of a book ready for Lititia Eisenman to put the cover on. Mr. Groulik watches to see that everything is done correctly.

A nice addition to the bookbindery is the new electric trimmer. Here Beverly Christensen is setting the machine to trim a book.

Craftshop

"Bang—bang—bang!" This is the sound you hear as you enter the Craftshop under the able management of Mr. Logan, a newcomer to our staff this year, and his assistant, Mr. Zummach. Here they cut, assemble, and finish casual oak furniture and redwood lawn furniture. Many students are employed by the Craftshop, which makes it possible for them to earn enough to meet most of their expenses here at school. Mr. Logan is kept very busy with the Craftshop, but in addition to his duties there, he is also the official photographer for the Maple Log and Maple Leaf, our school publications. We all appreciate his work and help here at school.

Laundry

Sorting, washing, folding, ironing—these are some of the jobs the girls must do in the Laundry. It's a big job to get all the students' laundry done each week. To help make their work more efficient and faster, the Laundry obtained a new washing machine and dryer this year. Under the excellent supervision of Mrs. Logan and with the aid of these new mechanisms, the laundry is done quickly and efficiently.

Shirley Schimek and Aldine Eisenman sort dirty clothes—the first step in cleaning clothes in the Laundry.

Kay Schanzenbach puts a sheet through the mangle, while Mrs. Logan gets another sheet ready for Kay. Other girls are busy ironing too.

Saundra Churches and Nancy Matson take clean clothes out of the dryer for Shirley Studniski to fold. Kay Schanzenbach sorts clean clothes into the students' boxes.

Farm

MR. JAMES CURRY
Manager

MR. JESSE ADAMS
Co-Manager

Our school farm is a busy place during the spring, summer and fall; but, during the winter months, it slows down. The farm is one of those places where you need to know many things. The boys learn about mechanics as they make repairs on the machinery for spring use. In the spring everyone lends a hand in getting the spring plowing done and the soil prepared for planting. In the summer the boys chop alfalfa for silage for winter feeding to the school's dairy herd. The fall season finds all farm employees busy with corn picking, fall plowing, and getting ready for the snows and winter winds. Nor would it be fair to pass by unnoticed the boys who rise early each morning to finish the milking before breakfast.

Mr. Curry points out to Terry Flyger the next place to be welded on the track.

Mr. Curry and Larry Reed watch as the bunk is filled with silage. The Olson brothers, Jim and Jon, are pitching the silage from the wagon.

Janitors

The Girls Dormitory janitors—Lois Kupcho, Leta Hensel and Cheryl Lund dust and straighten up the parlor for the weekend.

Dennis Versdahl and Jerry Rosaasen scrub and buff the boys dormitory floors many times a week.

Lowell Ingold mops up what was missed in main hall while Dick Hebbel collects the trash.

Terry Flyger, main hall janitor, has many jobs, including the main hall floor.

SPIRITUAL EMPHASIS

FALL

Elder Mervyn Maxwell, an Assistant Professor of Religion at Union College, was the guest speaker for our Fall Week of Prayer. The week of September 24-30 will long be remembered by our students because of the spiritual blessings received and victories won as a result of this time of special devotion. Elder Maxwell spent many hours in individual student counseling and becoming acquainted with members of our school family. Mrs. Maxwell's beautiful marimba music added much to several of the services. It was a real pleasure to have the Maxwells on our campus for this Week of Prayer.

ELDER C. MERVYN MAXWELL

WEEKS OF PRAYER

ELDER A. O. DART

SPRING

The Spring Week of Prayer finally arrived after many weeks of anticipation. Elder A. O. Dart, Assistant secretary of the Parent and Home Education Department of the General Conference, drew upon his many years of experience to bring practical counsel and spiritual inspiration to all. Eternity alone will reveal the results for good brought about during this week of devotion. Elder Dart has long been a friend of young people and our students are happy that they can now be numbered among his friends.

Sabbath School

The Sabbath School is a department in which all can participate and receive much benefit. Every week the student leaders plan interesting programs full of mission stories, musical numbers and inspirational thoughts. In the various classes provided for the Sabbath School lesson study, the students learn to know more of the life of Christ, to mold their lives after the divine pattern, and how a Christian should relate himself to those with whom he comes in contact.

MISSIONARY VOLUNTEER SOCIETY

Elder Lucas, world M. V. leader, and guest speaker, shows Shirley Ericson and Dwight Engelrup a foreign horn that was used to call people to meetings.

A working organization on our campus, expressly for the young people, is the Missionary Volunteer Society. Every week the leaders plan new and interesting programs which are enjoyed by young and old alike. These meetings consist of singing, stories, and experiences of others which thrill everyone present. Guest speakers and missionaries add variety and interest to our meetings. This year we were fortunate in having Elder Lucas, Elder Banks, and Elder Kelstrom, a returned missionary, along with others take part in our Missionary Volunteer meetings.

Religious Activities

Crusaders is a very active organization under the able guidance of President Pat Horst. Students in this group are divided into sections with a leader for each. One of the M. V. meetings this year featured these section leaders who told something of the activities of their group and the topic around which they have planned their programs. Pictured above are group leaders: Alvin Hensel, Hubert Hubin, and Beverly Fisher. Also shown is Pat Horst, president, and vocalists Lititia Eisenman and Gerry Hanson.

The students fondly recall many sunset vesper services attended in the quiet atmosphere of the new church as soft organ music provided the background for thoughts of inspiration and meditation.

Ingathering Field Day is a busy day, but one which also provides a lot of fun. At the end of the day, Mr. McKellip auctions off the produce that the students bring back as a result of their solicitation for funds for mission and welfare work.

Temperance Society

Elder Bras shows the winning oration paper to Alvin Hensel, the President of our American Temperance Society, and sponsors Mr. Blue and Mr. Schmidt.

Lititia Eisenman and Kermit Netteburg, oration contestants, watch as Ruth Ann Johnson delivers her winning oration.

*Once a master,
Now a slave,
Because a cigarette
He did crave.*

Beverly Fisher.

Next to the privilege of being chosen courtesy king and queen for the year, perhaps would be the thrill of being chosen to be first to wear the newly acquired robes and crowns. Karen Kaldahl and Ron Nelson had this privilege when they were selected as Courtesy King and Queen for the month of December.

Beverly Christensen kicks hard to get her shoe the farthest in the slipper kick race at the school picnic.

Dwight Engelrup runs to give winner, Hube Hubin, his warm-up jacket as he crosses the finish line for the mile race.

Student Body

The voting booth for new A.S.B. officers was set up in the library. Here Larry Reed and Henry Zollbrecht wait in line as Jon Olson casts his vote into the ballot box, Sandy Rasmussen hands a ballot to David Johnson and Mr. Blue comes out of the booth after voting.

Terry Flyger, at Station REES, urges Kennis Merkel and Chet Lembcke to vote for his candidate, Dick Rees, for A.S.B. president.

Shortly after the second semester officers took up their duties, they divided the student body into two sides for a Fanny Farmer Candy Campaign. The sides, "Twins" and "Vikings" were under the sponsorship of Mrs. Pierson and Mr. Blue, Mr. Hinde and Mr. Holmes respectively. The students enjoy the gymnasium equipment that was obtained with the proceeds from the campaign.
